DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-3 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Silverbrook et al. (US 6347864 B1) in view of Gandy et al. (US 5376957 A).

Silverbrook et al. disclose the following claim limitations:

As per claim 1: a printing fluid storage (figure 12, elements 708); a pagewidth printhead in fluid communication with the printing fluid storage (column 4, lines 11-18), the printhead having an array of inkjet nozzles formed on a nozzle substrate; and an air cover plate arranged alongside the inkjet nozzles, and thereby protect the inkjet nozzles from contact, paper during printing (figure 8, element 711- air supply channel) and having an air filter (figure 10, element 738) configured to enable air at a predetermined pressure to pass therethrough (predetermined pressure could be any pressure), the air cover plate directing the filtered air at said predetermined pressure across the pagewidth of inkjet nozzles during printing upon insertion of the cartridge into a cradle of the inkjet printer (column 1, lines 54-59). Silverbrook et al. does not specifically disclose air cover plate directly contacting the inkjet nozzles; however, it would have been well known in the art at the time of the invention that the two pieces would have been in direct proximity of each other and in the same small space (spine 704), such that they contact each other in the broadest sense of the word.

As per claim 2: an elongate body housing the printing fluid storage (figure 8, element 508) and adapted to be received within the cradle of the inkjet printer (figure 5, element 504 – cradle).

As per claim 3: the air cover plate is arranged to connect with an air compressor of the cradle upon insertion of the printer cartridge therein (figure 10; column 4, lines 45-65).

Silverbrook et al. does not disclose the following claim limitations:

As per claim 1: the air being pumped uniformly across the printhead nozzles.

Gandy et al. disclose the following claim limitations:

As per claim 1: the air being pumped uniformly across the printhead nozzles (column 2, lines 56-64).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine Silverbrook et al. and Gandy et al. in order to reduce nozzle clogging and improve printhead function.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-3 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
